Family Tree

This course will lead students through an interdisciplinary journey in search of their genealogical roots. Students will develop critical thinking and problem solving skills as they are challenged to investigate their ancestry using resources found in libraries, church archives, courthouses, state archives, and multiple digital databases. Students will write their history and present their findings in class. During the semester, students will also participate in community activities designed to encourage community involvement and volunteerism. The course is designed to introduce students to new experiences and skills that they can incorporate into their own lives.
