

CONFIDENTIAL CHRONICLES OF A COLLEGIATE

ALLANAH DAUZAT

8/23

9/23

10/23

11/23

12/23

EXTRAS

☆

☆

☆

Allanah Dautat grew up in Fifth Ward, Louisiana. After successfully completing her studies at the public charter school known as LaSAS, she has since enrolled at the University of Louisiana Lafayette. Allanah's academic goals include pursuing a degree in Human Development and Family Science alongside her pursuit of a bachelor's degree in English. She adores her family and four-legged companions and cherishes adventures with her closest friends. She takes pleasure in listening to the melodies of Taylor Swift and immersing herself in captivating novels.

☆

☆

☆ A New York Times Best Seller ☆

Delve into the mind of a first-time college freshman in the pages of this unfiltered memoir. Author Allanah Dauzat bares all- raw and vulnerable, she feels every emotion and asks every question. Curious about the college experience?

Fear not, as she guides you through the trials, tribulations, and the triumphs every college freshman faces. From roommate rifts to paycheck problems, the journey of leaning, feeling, and understanding is everlasting. Away from home and on her own, accompany Allanah as she tries to unravel the workings of college life, as well as her own identity. This compelling account allows you to live vicariously through her as she faces the most daunting, alluring, and enthralling thing yet: the world of adulthood.

“A brilliant account of a young girl in early adulthood” – a ‘real’ book critic

“Allanah is a hilarious, honest author. Her writing has a memorizing pull” – Danny DeVito

“A wonderful page turner... I couldn’t stop reading” – someone who is not her mom